

I think a great website like that would be very historical, and but it would have to include a tremendous amount of history. It would have to go into the black community in depth as to what it was, and some of the aspirations of the community, some of the folks who came out of those communities that did well, I mean, uh, and that was not because of uh, urban renewal, I think it was in spite of, because a lot of them came into the area with a lot of thoughts from Model, uh, from Model Cities too of course, but through urban renewal, of a brighter and enlightened community. And of course it became totally dark. It became a a midnight. No sun ever rose, and just destroyed a community, destroyed a whole way of life, really, almost.